SHAW GIVES ADVICE

NEW YORK, August 19.—Leslie M. Shaw, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, and now president of the Carnegie Trust Company, allowed himself to be interviewed yesterday on the state of the country. He said:

"Our farms produce more than $6,500,000,000 per annum, and the prospect is good for an average crop. Our mines yield more than $1,500,000,000 and our forests more than $100,000,000, and neither of these sources of wealth has been exhausted. The output of our factories, in other than food products, is approximately $12,000,000,000, and no fires have been extinguished. The railways earn more than $2,000,000,000 and they are all in successful operation. The payrolls of our factories and railways aggregate approximately $3,500,000,000 and the scale of wages has not been reduced."

"In other words the real sources of the people's wealth have not yet been affected and the ability of industrial concerns to pay dividends is not measured by the market price of their stocks. Logical reasons for serious conditions are therefore wanting. Psychological reasons are never wanting."

"If I judge correctly, the people will have exactly what they expect. If those who have money in the banks withdraw it and lock it up, if the banks refuse to grant accommodations, and if the consuming public decline to place orders, then we will very soon witness the effects."

EARTHQUAKES PAU SAYS THE EXPERT

PROFESSOR AMORI THINKS THAT EARTH HAS GOT THROUGH WITH PERIOD OF HEAVY JARS AND PREDICTS AN ERA OF STABILITY. THE EARTHQUAKE BELT AND SOME THEORIES OF FORECASTING SHOCKS.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 22.—"The present era of strong earthquake activity has been completed and I believe that for many years to come there will be no strong seismic disturbances."

Dr. F. Omori, professor of seismology of the Imperial university of Tokyo, who arrived by the steamer Kaga Maru yesterday on his way to The Hague to attend an international seismological conference, made the above statement on board the liner today.

Dr. Omori was last in Victoria in May of last year on his way to San Francisco to investigate the circumstances attending the earthquake disaster of April 18, 1906, and in an interview given here he said: "The next severe seismic disturbance will probably take place in Chile." Within three months Chile's most important city, Valparaiso, had been devastated, and severe disturbances had taken place elsewhere in Chile.

"I have demonstrated clearly as a result of investigations extending over many years, the existence of an earthquake zone," said Dr. Omori. "By looking at the map the Aleutian Islands and the Japanese Islands will be seen to lie in the form of arcs, and also the Himalaya range of mountains. This arc has been in each case formed by the pressure from the concave side. In the case of the Aleutian and Japanese Islands the sea is exceedingly deep on the convex side of this arc and shallow on the other."

"While in the North Pacific off the Aleutians the ocean depth is 7,000 meters, the Bering sea, on the other side, is shallow; and whereas off the Japanese coast the sea depth is greater than in most parts, if not all other parts of the world, being 8,000 meters, the sea of Japan is a shallow water. It is on the steep sides of the formations that the earthquake belt is most clearly shown."

WHALERS AND THE FOOD SUPPLY

THE EXCITEMENT THAT IS CAUSED IN THE NORTH BY ARRIVALS OF SUPPLY VESSELS.

PORT TOWNSEND, August 22.—"What dangers and privations people will submit to, possessed of the hope that a fortune may strike, was never better shown me than on the past trip to Fort Clarence," said Captain G. S. Harris, master of the American ship James Drummond, at anchor here after return from the north, where he carried a season's supplies to a large whaling fleet employed in the Arctic. "It transforms men from humans to monsters," continued Captain Harris. "The chance of getting fresh foods upon arrival of supply ships changes the whalers into demons in their efforts to be first in the race for supplies."

"It had occurred to me that in a sailing career of a quarter of a century that I had seen all phases of hardship in the world. It developed on this last voyage, however, that the worst I had seen before was mere play to the conduct of a crowd of whalers reaching a vessel bearing food and necessities from the outside."

"We reached Clarence July 3. Our coming had been announced among the fleet by passing steamers, and upon arrival at our destination four of the luggers were at anchor as nearly as possible on the spot we were to occupy. No sooner than our 'midhook' gone overboard than our decks swarmed with the men who were to receive the cargo of provisions and supplies we carried. They looked little like humans however."

"The ordinary hardships of a long voyage were accentuated in the appearance of the whalers by the necessity for their living in stuffy cabins and forecables. Swarming over our rails they came. All wanted food; fresh meat and 'spuds' and they wanted them quick. It was almost more than our crew could do to hold the voracious claimants in check until delivery of their shares were made in a systematic manner."

"The spectacle of a hairy and greasy whaler holding a package of letters in one hand, the first news of friends or family he had received in a year, and a package of fresh food in another, at a loss to decide which was entitled to first consideration was seen on every side. Generally the grub got a manhandling before the corresponding detail was taken up."

"There is something singular in the proceedings, too. Whalers in the Arctic in these days are provided ample food rations. So freely are northern waters traversed now that the communication does not permit any going short for long periods. An open-handed hospitality prevails among the men, and so often the strangers spoken that it would seem the arrival of the supply ships would be less of a novelty; at least not sufficient provocation for turning a man into an animal."

"We spent ten days at Clarence in discharging coal and dividing supplies among seven whalers. There was no difference in the conduct of any of the arrivals. It rather appeared that each ship to appear had a harder crowd of citizens to handle than the preceding one."

THE CUCUMBER'S ESCAPE.
"A cucumber is 95 per cent water," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which fails, however, to explain how the cucumber has escaped being listed on the New York stock exchange.—Omaha Bee.

that the locality is in a part of the earthquake chain affected by the faults or weak places underground left by previous shocks.

"Remarkable discoveries have been made by observation of seismic effects showing the bearing of atmospheric depression, and also of the tides in their relation to earthquakes. In recurrent shocks the fundamental time of recurrence has been shown to be four and one-half days. By observation it has been possible to predict, rather to guess, the approximate date. That was done while I was in Formosa. A severe shock occurred on the island of Formosa, at Kagi, on the southern end, on March 13 of this year. Nine days later, on March 22, a second shock occurred, the period elapsing being just twice the fundamental time of four and one-half days. This enabled me to predict the time of a subsequent shock to occur twenty-seven days after the former shock. That night the people did not go to bed, all waiting the expected, and in the early morning it took place, being much more severe than the previous shocks. The warning proved, however, of considerable advantage to the people who were prepared for the disturbance."

"There was a slight shock here recently," the seismologist was informed. "That is good. That is the normal state. A slight shock is beneficial, rather than otherwise. It does away with the existence of weak points, and ameliorates underground conditions."

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE.
Statisticians have figured out that Secretary Taft has traveled 160,000 miles on the public service. That's nothing. Mr. Bryan has traveled further than that and is still waiting for the brakeman to come in and shout: "White House is the next station. All out for White House!"—Omaha Bee.

A SHILLING SAVED REPRESENTS TEN EARNED.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent. of his earnings. He must spend nine shillings in living expenses for every one saved. Sometimes a few pence properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several times the amount later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but little and a bottle of it in the house often saves a large doctor's bill. For sale by all dealers, Benson, Smith & Co., agents for Hawaii.

Century Cameras

For the first time in Honolulu you have the opportunity to buy the famous Century Camera.

Century Cameras embody more improvements than any other plate camera. There are no exceptions. One of its principal features is the revolving back, which enables the photographer to decide instantly just how he wishes to make the picture, as the reflected image can be viewed on the ground glass, either vertical or horizontal, without detaching the back or moving the camera.

There are many other improvements equally as desirable. To see a "Century" is to want one. We will be pleased to explain to you every detail.
